Coors comes to the aid of local Church

Burton brewer, Coors Brewers Ltd, has come to the aid of local church, Christian International Ministries following a fire at their premises in Horninglow Street last week.

The brewer has offered the Guildhall in Station Street as a temporary home for the church for their regular Sunday services, starting this weekend.

Senior Pastors, Stephen and Jenny Watson, said: "The Church has been overwhelmed by the response of the church family and members of the public who have offered to help.

"The Guildhall will provide the perfect temporary home for the church and is a welcome 'answer to prayer' after the tragic loss by fire last Thursday of our recently renovated premises. We're very grateful to Coors Brewers to offer their premises until the Ministry can find a permanent location or until their venue can be rebuilt.

"We are very excited about the partnership with Coors Brewers and the mutual support that this opportunity will afford towards all ventures and projects to bless the town and bring hope into seemingly desperate and unfortunate circumstances."

Kelly Hughes, Coors Business Services Manager, said: "We're delighted to help out the local church in their time of need. We've recently renovated the Guildhall and many of our staff use the premises for meetings during the week, it's great to see it put to good use during the weekend for such a good cause."
